

DECENT COACHING CLASSES

GRAMMAR SESSION 6 • 8th AUGUST

Sentence Types, Clauses & Conjunctions

simple, compound, complex • independent & dependent clauses • FANBOYS

BEFORE WE BEGIN

Quick Recap — Sessions 1 to 5

SESSION 1 • 3rd Aug

Parts of Speech, Subject-Verb Agreement, Question Tags & Prepositions

SESSION 3 • 5th Aug

Active & Passive Voice

SESSION 5 • 7th Aug

Modals, Determiners, Articles & Non-Finite Verbs

SESSION 2 • 4th Aug

Tenses — Simple, Continuous, Perfect, Perfect Continuous

SESSION 4 • 6th Aug

Reported Speech — Direct & Indirect Speech

Today we zoom out from words to whole SENTENCES — how they're built, how clauses combine, and how conjunctions hold it all together!

What We Will Cover Today

A

Sentence Types by Structure — Simple, Compound, Complex, Compound-Complex

B

Sentence Types by Function — Declarative, Interrogative, Exclamatory, Imperative

C

Clauses — Independent & Dependent, Noun, Adjective & Adverb Clauses

D

Conjunctions — Coordinating, Subordinating & Correlative

E

Master Table — Complete Reference for All 4 Topics

F

PYQs from 8th SB, 8th CBSE, 9th CBSE & 10th SB

What is a Sentence?

A sentence is a group of words (or even a single word) that gives complete sense. It is a grammatical unit that starts with a capital letter and ends with a full stop or its equivalent (! or ?).

conveys

Sentences are classified into FOUR types based on their STRUCTURE:

1

Simple Sentence

One independent clause

2

Compound Sentence

Two+ independent clauses joined by a coordinating conjunction

3

Complex Sentence

One independent + one or more dependent clauses

4

Compound-Complex

Two+ independent clauses + at least one dependent clause

Simple Sentences

A sentence which has ONE subject followed by a finite verb in the predicate part is called a Simple Sentence — just one independent clause.

SUBJECT + PREDICATE

The Earth moves round the sun.

~~Dogs bark.~~

The baby cried for milk.

Ali bought a car.

💡 JUST FOR FUN

Simple doesn't mean short and boring — "The excited students cheered loudly" is still a simple sentence!

Compound Sentences

A sentence in which two or more Main Clauses (Independent Clauses) are joined by a coordinating conjunction is called a Compound Sentence.

Joined using Co-ordinating Conjunctions — remember the mnemonic FANBOYS (For, And, Nor, But, Or, Yet, So).

The boy entered the room and came out after ten minutes.

He worked hard but failed the examination.

I waited for the bus but it was late.

Study hard otherwise you will fail.

💡 JUST FOR FUN

"Otherwise" here works like a connector too — but strictly it's a conjunctive adverb, not one of the FANBOYS!

Complex Sentences

A sentence which consists of a Main Clause (Independent Clause) and one or more Subordinate Clauses (Dependent Clauses) is known as a Complex Sentence.

The Dependent Clause is introduced by Subordinate Conjunctions (after, as, because, before, if, until, while etc.) or Relative Pronouns (who, that, whom, whose, which).

We won the game because we worked together as a team.

~~I'm not~~ Doctors claim that cancer is curable. M.C.

The teacher punished the student who told a lie.

Thieves left the place as soon as they saw the police.

~~Although I broke my arm,~~ I still cheered for my team from the sidelines.

Compound-Complex Sentences

A Compound-Complex sentence consists of TWO (or more) Main/Independent Clauses AND at least ONE Subordinate/Dependent Clause.

MC SC

~~SC~~ MC

~~SAC~~ MC

After the two soccer players lost their game, they joined their teammates for lunch, and they went to the movies.

MC

M

The man believed in the system, and he knew that justice would prevail after the murderer was sent to jail.

MC

MC

SC

The team captain jumped for joy, and the fans cheered because we won the Champion Trophy.

MC

SC

MC

Though Hassan prefers watching comedy films, he rented the latest spy thriller, and he enjoyed it very much.

SC

MC

MC

Miniha forgot her friend's birthday, so she sent her a card when she finally remembered.

SC

MC

SC

Types of Simple Sentences (by Purpose)

Besides structure, every sentence also has a PURPOSE — what it's trying to do. Based on function, sentences fall into four types:

Declarative

Makes a statement. Ends with a full stop (.)

Interrogative

Asks a question. Ends with a question mark (?)

Exclamatory

Shows strong feeling. Ends with an exclamation mark (!)

Imperative

Gives a command/request. Subject is usually "you" (understood)

Declarative & Interrogative Sentences

DECLARATIVE (Statement)

We use it to make statements — simply telling the reader something.

Examples:

Dinosaurs lived millions of years ago.

This is my favourite movie.

This is my dog.

INTERROGATIVE (Question)

When we ask a question, we use an interrogative sentence. It always ends with a question mark (?).

Examples:

Would you like some coffee?

Do you like butter?

Who was Abraham Lincoln?

Exclamatory Sentences

An exclamatory sentence makes a statement but also conveys excitement or strong emotion. It always ends with an exclamation mark (!). There are TWO ways to write one:

Exclamatory in FUNCTION

A normal statement that simply ends with an exclamation mark — word order stays the same as a declarative sentence.

I love that movie!

I can't wait to go to the village!

Exclamatory in FORM

Starts with "What" or "How", is NOT a question, and shows a shift in the typical word order.

do

What big ears you have!

What a crowd!

Imperative Sentences

An imperative sentence is used to give an order, request, or instruction to someone. The subject of every single command is the speaker's listener — "you" — and it is usually left unstated (understood).

Show me the money.

Mom, give me my present.

Wait for me!

Get back to work.

💡 JUST FOR FUN

Notice: "(You) wait for me!" — the "you" is hiding, but it's always the implied subject of a command.

What is a Clause?

A clause is a word or group of words that contains a SUBJECT and a VERB, and is used either as part of a sentence or as a complete sentence by itself.

Handwritten annotations: An arrow points from the word 'simple' to the underlined phrase 'as a complete sentence'. Another arrow points from the word 'simple' to the underlined phrase 'as part of a sentence'.

The author, whom I met at the book signing, was very graceful.

I think that you have made a mistake.

Before we leave on our road trip, we have to check the map.

💡 JUST FOR FUN

Every clause has its own mini subject+verb pair — think of clauses as the building blocks that snap together to form bigger sentences.

Independent vs Dependent Clauses

INDEPENDENT CLAUSE

Also called a Main Clause. It expresses a complete meaning and can stand by itself as a sentence.

I saw a man who was crying.

I met a friend who helped me a lot.

Ali will meet you after he finishes studying.

DEPENDENT CLAUSE

Also called a Subordinate Clause. It cannot express a complete meaning and cannot stand alone. It begins with a subordinating conjunction or relative pronoun.

We meet a man who could speak many languages.

I need to take a nap because I only got four hours of sleep.

If we go to the movies tonight, do you want a scary film?

Words That Introduce Dependent Clauses

Dependent clauses are introduced by subordinating conjunctions or relative pronouns — memorize this list, it will keep coming back!

After

As

Although

Because

Before

Which

Until

Unless

Where

How

If

Since

Then

That

When

Whom

Who

Whose

Sample Sentences

She loves her son, who never tells a lie.

We have to help with dinner when Mom and Dad come home.

The movie was better than I expected it to be.

Noun Clauses

A group of words that contains a subject and a predicate of its own AND does the work of a NOUN (subject, object, or complement) is called a Noun Clause.

Whoever wants to go fishing should come with us.

Noun

Pronoun

I was wondering about what time we should leave.

Rel she.

In class, we learned how bats use sonar to locate objects.

Ali's biggest fear is that he will trip on stage.

I thought that it would be a fine day.

Adjective Clauses

A group of words that contains a subject and a predicate of its own AND does the work of an ADJECTIVE (describing a noun) is called an Adjective Clause. It usually begins with a relative pronoun.

The person who took my order forgot to bring me my drink.

This is the track where we like to go running.

The house, ^{A.C} which received fire damage, had extensive renovations.

Students who are intelligent get good grades.

💡 JUST FOR FUN

An adjective clause always sits right next to the noun it describes — just like a regular adjective would!

Adverb Clauses

If →

A group of words that contains a subject and predicate of its own AND does the work of an ADVERB (modifying a verb, adjective, or another adverb — showing time, place, reason, or condition) is an Adverb Clause.

I will stay at home until you arrive.

When they arrived at the station, they ran to get the train.

Adv. Cl.
The movie was better than I expected it to be. V. cl.

Because we bought the items on sale, we got a really good deal.

If Ali wants to come along, he can meet us at the theatre.

What is a Conjunction?

A conjunction is the part of speech used as a "joiner" for words, phrases, or clauses in a sentence. It links these pieces together so that the relationships between them — and the thoughts they carry — are connected.

Examples

Both my brother and my father are lawyers.

Most children like cookies and milk.

Coor

Complex

There are THREE types of conjunctions: Coordinating • Subordinating • Correlative

Coordinating Conjunctions — FANBOYS

The main function of coordinating conjunctions is to join words, phrases, and clauses that are grammatically EQUAL.

We remember them with the mnemonic FANBOYS:

For • And • Nor • But • Or • Yet • So

Examples:

Pizza and burgers are my favourite snacks.

You can eat your cake with a spoon or fork.

He worked hard, but failed the examination.

FANBOYS Breakdown

F For — reason

A And — addition

N Nor — negative choice

B But — contrast

O Or — alternative

Y Yet — contrast

S So — result

Subordinating Conjunctions

This type of conjunction is used to link two clauses together — a main clause and a subordinate (dependent) clause — showing a relationship like time, cause, condition, or contrast.

while as soon as

although

before

even if because no matter how whether wherever

when

until

after

as if

how

if provided in that once supposing unless

in case

as far as now that so that though

since

Examples

"After dinner, we'll go see a movie." "Although I'd rather not, I'll make an exception." "Since then, I've had a different opinion of him."

Correlative Conjunctions

Correlative conjunctions are simply PAIRS of conjunctions used together to join two equal sentence elements.

either ... or neither ... nor

not only ... but also both ... and whether ... or so ... as

Examples

Both my brother and my father are lawyers.

I can't decide whether I'll take Chemical Engineering or Medical Technology in college.

💡 JUST FOR FUN

Correlative pairs must always match — "not only... but also", never "not only... but"!

Master Table — All 4 Topics at a Glance

Sentence Type	Structure	By Function	Ends With	Clause	Role	Conjunction	Example
Simple	1 Independent Clause	Declarative	Full stop (.)	Independent	Stands alone
Compound	2+ Independent (+FANBOYS)	Interrogative	Question mark (?)	Dependent	Needs a main clause	Coordinating	FANBOYS
Complex	1 Independent + 1+ Dependent	Exclamatory	Exclamation mark (!)	Noun Clause	Acts as a noun	Subordinating	because, if, when
Compound-Complex	2+ Independent + 1+ Dependent	Imperative	Full stop / (!)	Adjective Clause	Describes a noun
				Adverb Clause	Modifies verb/adj/adv	Correlative	either...or

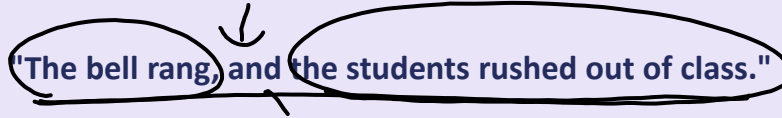

A clause = subject + verb. An independent clause can stand alone; a dependent clause cannot. Conjunctions are the glue that joins clauses together.

Set 1 — Sentence Types

Q1. [8th SB • 2 Marks]

Identify the type of sentence (by structure): "The bell rang, and the students rushed out of class."

Q2. [8th CBSE • 2 Marks]

Identify the type of sentence (by function): "What a beautiful sunset this is!"

Excl.

PREVIOUS YEAR QUESTIONS

Set 2 — Sentence Types & Clauses

Q3. [9th CBSE • 3 Marks]

Although

Combine into a complex sentence: "The man was poor, He was honest." (use "although")

Q4. [10th SB • 3 Marks]

SC

MC

Identify the independent and dependent clause: "Because it was raining, we cancelled the picnic."

Because it was raining,

we cancelled the picnic."

Set 3 — Clauses

Q5. [8th SB • 3 Marks]

Identify the type of clause (noun/adjective/adverb): "I know that he is telling the truth."

I know that he is telling the truth.

Q6. [9th CBSE • 3 Marks]

Identify the type of clause: "This is the house where I was born."

This is the house where I was born.

Set 4 — Conjunctions

Q7. [10th SB • 2 Marks]

Fill in the blank with a suitable correlative conjunction: "___ Reena ___ her sister scored well in the exam." (both...and)

Q8. [8th CBSE • 2 Marks]

Join using a suitable coordinating conjunction: "Work hard. You will not succeed." (use a FANBOYS word for contrast)

OR

LET'S RECAP

Key Takeaways from Today

Sentence Types (Structure)

Simple = 1 independent clause. Compound = 2+ joined by FANBOYS.
Complex = independent + dependent. Compound-Complex = both combined.

Sentence Types (Function)

Declarative states, Interrogative asks, Exclamatory expresses emotion, Imperative commands.

Clauses

Independent clauses stand alone; dependent clauses cannot. Clauses also work as nouns, adjectives, or adverbs.

Conjunctions

Coordinating (FANBOYS) joins equals; Subordinating joins main+dependent clauses; Correlative works in matched pairs.

Great Work, Everyone!

Practice writing one sentence of each structure and each function before our next session.